Who we are

Serve the City mobilises, enables and manages volunteers to support people facing vulnerability, isolation and social exclusion across Belgium. We bring people together not only to help but to create communities where people feel seen, valued, and connected.

Why it matters

Social exclusion is growing but belonging can change everything. We create spaces where people move from isolation to connection, and from receiving help to being part of something meaningful.

What we do

We create accessible volunteering opportunities through:

Food outreach | Education programmes
Social exchange | Hands-on & Sustainability Projects

We believe that

Many people doing small things together can make a big difference.

Where we are

Brussels, Leuven and Wavre

We are part of an international network present in 45+ cities worldwide.

Our approach

We are a grassroots organisation where people are encouraged to take ownership. Volunteers can grow into roles such as project leaders and help shape our programmes. Over time, they don't just participate; they help build the community itself.

Our vision is simple

A world where everyone can volunteer and feel part of a community.
